

While we wind our way through the hustle and bustle of coding our components and the all important business of answering your support tickets, here at Azrul.com, we also aware of the bigger picture. The greater issues that engulfs us all, as one big family of humanity and our shared home, planet earth.

In order to observe and honour Earth Day, which is tomorrow, the 22 April of this year, Azrul.com will run its operations without lights and as paperless operation for the entire day. The lights at our office shall be turned off at the close of operations today and shall not be turned on again until the morning of 23 April. We shall also turn off our printers and put down our pens and pencils tomorrow and run without our usual scribblings and writings and printings.

A drop in the bucket I suppose and symbolic gestures at best. Though we do hope to slowly work towards helping to reduce the burdens upon mother earth and run our operations in a sustainable manner. Till then we solemnly observe Earth Day and pledge our support for our Earth, our future and our childrens's future.
