

This week is quite a hectic week for us. On top of working on JomComment 3.0 and MyBlog 2.0 , we are also in charge of organizing Joomla Daya Malaysia 2008. We are always committed to spread Joomla! love around, especially at our hometown, Malaysia. This would be our 2nd year organizing JoomlaDay as project manager, with help from Joomla-My community.

We actually have no idea that there are just so many Joomla user in Malaysia. We originally prepare the venue and the event for 150 participant, but we quickly run out of seat and had to open an extra 50 seat, which again were snapped very very quickly.

For JDay this year, Toby Patterson from Joomla.org will be giving a talk on Joomla 1.5 and component development. I will also give a talk on Joomla 1.5 template development. A couple of local Joomla expert will guide new users to get their site up and running.

If any of you guys are coming, I hope to see you there!

And, special thanks to our JDay sponsors, ExaBytes, MDeC, Cari.com.my and a couple of 3rd party developer , Vince from Joomres, Alledia, Mike Simbunch, Packt Publishing, Chicago Joomla user/Cofee group USA, Ninjoomla and iJoomla.
